The University of Arizona offers resources to students and employees impacted by sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking. Available supportive measures/accommodations can be enacted quickly, before or without a complaint being filed, and will be confidential to the extent allowable under law and policy. University students and employees can contact the Office of Institutional Equity at equity@arizona.edu or (520) 621-9449 to request supportive measures/accommodations.

If you are in danger, call 9-1-1.

VICTIMS’ RIGHTS

Victims of sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking have multiple options regarding the involvement of law enforcement and University authorities, including the option to:

- Notify law enforcement authorities, including on-campus and local police;
- Be assisted by University authorities in notifying law enforcement; or
- Decline to notify such authorities.

Whether or not a victim chooses to involve law enforcement or a University disciplinary authority, the University provides victims with information on, and access to, existing counseling, health, mental health, survivor advocacy, legal assistance, visa and immigration assistance, student financial aid, and other support and resources.

MEDICAL SERVICES

Victims may wish to seek medical care for injuries, for preventative care and testing, or to preserve forensic evidence. Victims have the right to receive medical care at any emergency department.

Information on medical forensic exams, including providers in Tucson, is available at sacasa.org; information on providers throughout Arizona is available at arizonasurvivors.org; information on providers nationwide is available by calling the National Sexual Assault Hotline, (800) 656-4673. Victims may receive a medical forensic exam without filing a police report or making a report to the University. Victims can receive an exam and choose if, and when to report, including deciding to report later.

In Arizona, though otherwise confidential, medical providers (both on and off-campus) are required to report to the police any physical evidence of a material injury resulting from a violent crime.

A victim can decline police contact.
EVIDENCE COLLECTION & PRESERVATION

Forensic evidence collection is a police process to collect and preserve possible evidence of a crime, including evidence related to sexual assault or another crime of violence. Forensic evidence is best collected within 72 hours of an incident.

Preservation of evidence can aid in criminal investigations and prosecutions, administrative/disciplinary investigations, and in obtaining a protective order.

Tips:
- Leave the area where the harm occurred undisturbed.
- Refrain from washing, bathing, showering, douching, or brushing teeth, if possible.
- Refrain from washing clothes or other items worn/used during the incident; place each item in a separate paper bag (no plastic).
- Retain text messages, emails, photos, or videos.

REPORTING OPTIONS

There are multiple options if an individual needs information and assistance or wants to report an incident of sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking.

*Note: If an incident occurs off the Tucson campus, UAPD will assist a victim in contacting the law enforcement agency with jurisdiction to accept the criminal complaint, whether the incident occurred in Tucson or another location in or outside of Arizona.

Responsible Reporters/Campus Security Authorities/Confidential Reporting

Most University employees are responsible for reporting to the University when they are aware a student or employee has been subjected to sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, discrimination, or harassment, including sex-based harassment prohibited under Title IX. Responsible employees are obligated to make a report to the Office of Institutional Equity and include identifying information about the victim/complainant when such information is known.

More information is available at equity.arizona.edu.

Many employees, designated as Campus Security Authorities (CSAs), are additionally responsible for reporting to the University when they know a reportable crime has occurred; for a list of reportable crimes visit clery.arizona.edu. Sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking are all crimes that CSAs are obliged to report. CSAs should make a victim aware of their reporting obligation and inform the victim that they can fulfil their reporting obligation without providing personally identifying information (e.g., victim’s name or address).

The University has designated certain offices and professionals as confidential resources. This means that if a victim reports sexual assault, sex-based domestic violence, dating violence, sex-based stalking, or other sex discrimination, including sex-based harassment, to them, they will act consistent with law and policy, and will not share the information provided with the University Title IX disciplinary authority (OIE) and will not reveal personally identifiable information about the victim without an express request by the victim.
CONFIDENTIALITY

When the University is aware of an incident of sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking, steps are taken to protect the confidentiality of the victim.

- Confidential resources are available to the victim to ensure the victim has access to resources, options, and support without making a report to any University official.

- Publicly available recordkeeping, such as the daily crime log and annual crime statistics, has no personally identifiable information about the victim.
- Publicly available crime warnings never have personally identifiable information about a victim.
- Accommodations are confidential (to the extent they can be without impairing the ability to provide them).

Confidential Resources

Medical providers are not obliged to submit a Title IX report to the Office of Institutional Equity. LEGAL PROTECTIVE ORDERS

Legal Orders (Orders of Protection and Injunctions Against Harassment) in Arizona can be initiated at azpoint.azcourts.gov. This website also provides information on process steps, information on courts throughout Arizona, and on community-based advocates.

Survivor Advocates, survivorsupport.arizona.edu are available to assist students in the Arizona legal protective order petition process.

Tribal Protective Orders may be available through courts which administer justice systems of Native Nations/tribal nations. Each tribal court may utilize a specific process; individuals seeking tribal protective orders should contact the tribal court directly. A list of tribal courts by state is available at tribal-institute.org/lists/justice.htm.

Disciplinary matters involving sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking afford the following rights to victims:

• A prompt, fair, and impartial process from the initial investigation to the final result;
• A reasonably prompt timeframe as provided in the specific disciplinary procedures
  ◊ Office of Institutional Equity, Interim Procedures for Formal Complaints of Title IX Sex-based Harassment, equity.arizona.edu/policies-procedures
  ◊ Dean of Students, Student Disciplinary Procedures, deanofstudents.arizona.edu/policies/student-disciplinary-procedures in a manner that is transparent and provides timely notice of meetings and equal access to information for both parties;
• A determination rendered after consideration of evidence using a preponderance of the evidence standard of proof;
• A disciplinary process conducted by officials without a conflict of interest or bias for either party and who receive annual training on how to conduct an investigation and hearing process that protects the safety of victims and promotes accountability;
• The opportunity to have others present during a disciplinary proceeding, including the opportunity to be accompanied to any related meetings or proceedings by an advisor of choice;
• Notification, in writing, of:
  ◊ The result of any administrative disciplinary proceeding from the victim’s/complainant’s report of sexual assault, domestic violence,
dating violence or stalking;
◊ The procedures to appeal, which, if available, are offered to both parties;
◊ Any change to the outcome;
◊ Confirmation when the results become final.

In addition to the rights specified above, parties involved in a Title IX proceeding can expect that the Title IX Coordinator, and designees, will:

- Treat the complainant and respondent equitably;
- Offer and coordinate supportive measures for the complainant;
  ◊ If the Title IX grievance procedures, or an informal process, are initiated, offer and coordinate supportive measures as appropriate, for the respondent;
  ◊ Provide timely opportunity, to the complainant and respondent, to seek modification or reversal of the decision to provide, deny, modify or terminate supportive measures;
- Notify the complainant or, if the complainant is unknown, the individual who reported the conduct, of the grievance procedures or informal resolution options, if available and appropriate;
  ◊ If a complaint is made, notify the respondent of the grievance procedures, or informal resolution options, if available and appropriate;
- In response to a complaint the Title IX Coordinator will initiate the grievance procedures, or an informal resolution process, if available and appropriate and requested by all parties;
- In the absence of a complaint, or the withdrawal of any or all of the allegations in a complaint, and in the absence or termination of an informal resolution process, the Title IX Coordinator will determine whether to initiate a complaint of sex discrimination, including sex-based harassment, that complies with University Policy.

Disciplinary/grievance proceedings addressing sexual assault, dating violence, domestic violence, and stalking may result in a variety of sanctions. Disciplinary sanctions issued to a student may range from removal from a University educational program or activity to expulsion and degree revocation; and for an employee, disciplinary sanctions may include a written warning, written reprimand, suspension without pay, involuntary demotion, disciplinary probation, and dismissal. Disciplinary sanctions may also be accompanied by other, non-disciplinary actions allowable under existing University rules, policies, and practices.
